Prof. Felix Dasser is a senior partner and former head of the firm's dispute resolution practice. His practice focuses on international commercial disputes, litigation and arbitration in general, corporate and commercial law, and compliance investigations.

He has acted as counsel and arbitrator in more than 50 international commercial arbitration cases, including as global lead counsel in a billion-dollar IT-dispute. He is familiar with various arbitration rules and is a member of the Board Executive Committee of ASA, the Swiss Arbitration Association.

He advises Swiss companies on international litigation strategies and on the impact of foreign regulatory proceedings and represents Swiss and foreign companies before Swiss courts and authorities.

His range of expertise covers, in particular, banking and insurance, M&A, commodity sales, distribution agreements, IT, engineering, and international legal assistance. He also advises on and conducts regulatory and compliance investigations, and represents companies in white collar crime proceedings.

Felix Dasser lectures and publishes regularly in the fields of international commercial dispute resolution and international business law. He also appears as expert witness on Swiss law in domestic and foreign court proceedings.

Legal 500 qualified him as "outstanding" and lists him as a leading individual both for litigation and for arbitration in Switzerland. Chambers recommends him for his "technical prowess" in litigation and as arbitration counsel, with added experience of regulatory compliance issues. Who's Who Legal referred to him as "remarkable" (arbitration) and "most highly regarded" and a "standout name" (commercial litigation) with "deep experience in a range of international commercial disputes, including white-collar crime and regulatory compliance" (2016).
